BZZZZZZZZT...wrong answer, Cecil. I just love these attempts at meaningful analogies! Arguments would be alot stronger without them.

Even by Dan's figure, 38% of US amateurs regularly use CW. I'd dare say the figure for International hams (on HF) is quite a bit higher. Now, if 38% + of all the electrical engineering literature was published in another language, you can bet your rubber sea-serpent that they would require foreign language for a BSEE.

Care to try another anal-alology?
